Mr. Raymond Monette

Dear Mr. Monette:

In a February 7, 2005 letter, I pointed out that your company was attempting to sell CADI software which infringed on the MediaDent software owned and sold by our client MultiMedia Dental Systems, Inc. By letter dated March 22, 2005, your counsel responded. He did not deny that your software infringed on MultiMedia's product, but he represented that Synca was "not selling the product alleged." In recent months we have uncovered evidence that Synca was again attempting to market its product to customers in North America, including Georgia, through dealers such as Video Dental Concepts of Ormond Beach, Florida and through internet websites which are available to Georgia residents.

Today we have learned that Synca is showing its CADI product at an American Dental Association show in Las Vegas, Nevada USA. Synca is not licensed to use the Media Dent code which is contained in the CADI product. Synca's marketing of the CADI product is in contravention of MultiMedia's exclusive rights and United States copyright law. Your activities at the ADA meeting give rise to common law and statutory causes of action including, among other things, copyright infringement, unfair competition, passing off, misappropriation of trade secrets, false designation of origin, and trademark and/or trade name infringement.

On behalf of MultiMedia, we demand that you immediately cease and desist all marketing of the CADI product which infringes upon MultiMedia's copyrighted software, including, but not limited to, the display, advertising, and efforts to sell that product at the ADA show in Las Vegas. In addition, we demand that within ten (10) days of the date of this letter Synca provide MultiMedia with written assurance that all efforts to market the CADI product containing the infringing code in North America, Central America, or South America have been terminated, and that Synca is taking steps to insure that no further violation of MediaDent's common law and statutory rights occurs. Finally, we demand an accounting, within twenty (20) days of the date of this letter, of all sales of the CADI product in the Americas. MediaDent reserves all rights arising as a result of past actions by Synca.

Very truly yours,

Gregory J. Digel
